

Memo

To: Planet Earth

From: Reading Lab

Attention English students— especially English K, English L, English 9, and English 19 Students!

This semester, we're offering even more ways to fulfill your 16-hour Reading Lab requirement! In fact, you'll probably forget there is a requirement and visit us far beyond the 16 hours! It's . . . out of this world!

1) Visit the Reading Lab—The Reading Lab continues to offer a wonderful selection of workbooks, tapes, and CDs to help you with vocabulary, pronunciation, comprehension, and critical thinking.

Hours: Monday-Thursday 8am to 7:45pm, Fridays 8am-4:45pm, and Saturdays 11am-2pm.

2) NEW! Go Online! Visit the Reading Lab Webpage at www.ccsf.edu/english/readinglab, and receive credit for working with our online exercises. (Note: You must be logged in at the Reading Lab to receive Reading Lab credit).

3) NEW! Join a Book Group—Several book groups are forming right now! See the Lab Page for more information, or go right to the Reading Lab to learn more and sign up in advance. These groups (3-6 students) will meet once a week with a faculty leader to collectively discuss a book. Earn lab credit for reading and discussing what you've read—from the comical to the political to the magical—with teachers and friends! Want to learn more? Here's a handy flyer, Earthling:
<http://www.ccsf.edu/english/labpage/readinggroupssp06.pdf>

4) NEW! Sign up for Tutoring—This semester the Reading Lab will offer one-on-one tutoring. (Note: Tutoring is only for students enrolled in English classes). Having trouble understanding what you need to read for class? Want some feedback on what's happening when you read? Want to become a stronger reader? Work with a faculty tutor and receive lab credit at the Reading Lab tutoring table near the Writing Lab. You can even receive help with your reading group book! Learn more and see the schedule:
<http://www.ccsf.edu/english/labpage/readingtutorschedsp06.pdf>

Jump to our NEW Reading Lab Webpage, and you'll learn even more! Find book recommendations from faculty, see when the Lab will be open, use online activities, and check out important announcements!

www.ccsf.edu/english/readinglab