A DREAM COME TRUE: FROM STUDENT INTERN TO CITY COLLEGE FACULTY

‘Grow Your Own’ and ‘Faculty Intern/Mentor’ programs

By Kitty Moriwaki

Assessment and Prerequisites
Coordinator, Office of Matriculation

History of the Faculty Intern/Mentor Program

Through Assembly Bill 1725, the State legislature encouraged community colleges to engage in outreach and recruitment of under-represented groups. In response to this legislation the City College Academic Senate framed a number of resolutions in 1988, under the leadership and guidance of Glenn Nance and Austin White, addressed to the San Francisco Community College Governing Board in support of diversifying faculty hiring at CCSF. One of the key resolutions read as follows:

“In order to recruit possible future faculty members at City College, funds must be budgeted for a mentor system which will maintain continuous contact with City College transfer students who have indicated an interest in teaching or counseling at the community college level and which will encourage these former students to do their student teaching or counseling apprentice-ships at City College and to apply subsequently for permanent faculty positions at the college.”

In its wisdom, the City College of San Francisco Governing Board initiated the Faculty Diversity Intern-Mentor Program under the direction of Horace (Alex) Alexander in the Fall of 1990. This program was designed to attract qualified graduate students who had an interest in teaching at the community college level by familiarizing them with the college’s instructional environment. The Faculty Diversity Intern-Mentor Program was undertaken as an innovative recruiting method for broadening the spectrum of faculty candidates at City College. This plan committed the college to marshaling adequate resources for carrying out the Faculty Diversity Intern-Mentor Program as envisioned by AB1725. It was felt that by drawing on the considerable talents, skills, and knowledge of faculty as mentors for qualified graduate students, the college could expand the demographic base of our faculty, making it more representative of our diverse service area.

After several years of productive recruiting and placement of Interns, some of whom are now teaching at City College, this program was discontinued, despite the success it had enjoyed. It remained dormant until many faculty and administrators began, in retrospect, to realize the important need that it had fulfilled in attracting new, inspired faculty. Because of the popular demand to reinstate the program, Nance with the support of Alexander, managed to get the program up and running again in 1999. However, with the passage of State Proposition 209 in the interim, it could no longer be characterized as a “Diversity” program.

One of the memorable recollections of the reinstated Intern Mentor Program was that Anthony Lovejoy, the first intern to complete the program, was mentored by Ed Moreno, a former intern himself in the original program, who had since become a full time faculty at CCSF.

Grow Your Own Program

With the help and support of Department Chairs like Darlene Alitoto, and faculty like Sue Homer a number of interns have completed the program, some of whom are now faculty at CCSF, especially in the Social Science Department.

Current program

Because of previous experience with similar programs at Daytona Beach Community College, our Chancellor, Dr. Philip R. Day, Jr., took a keen interest in the Intern Mentor Program when he came to City College. This interest led to his suggestion that we start a parallel intern program, one designed for City College graduates who were interested in coming back to teach at City College. This program would provide students with financial support and a support network to help them complete their Masters Degree. When the Interns were close to completing their masters degree requirements, they would return to CCSF to do an Internship for two semesters with one of our faculty in their field of specialization. After the completion of this internship, the department would attempt to find a part time faculty position for them at City College.

This modified version of the original Intern-Mentor program is now up and running as the "Grow Your Own" Faculty Internship program, with much help and input from Homer and Vice Chancellor Don Griffin. Both programs, the Intern-Mentor and Grow Your Own, work side by side to enhance the diversity and representation of our faculty in all areas of instructional delivery, teaching, counseling and library services especially in areas that are underrepresented. Both are open to all students who have a passion to serve as faculty at the community college level and appreciate the challenges that this offers. The programs give the intern an opportunity to work under the direct supervision of a CCSF faculty mentor in an actual class room setting/counseling/library setting.

Application Process

Grow Your Own applicants must be graduates of City College, or transfer students who have acquired at least 45 units. They also must be enrolled in an accredited four year college or university. City College students who are already doing upper division work or are currently working on their masters degree are eligible. GYO applicants will be expected to make a commitment to teach for a period of time at City College when they have completed their internship. Applicants for the Faculty Mentor/Intern Program must either possess a masters degree or be at least 50 percent through the graduate program, however, they need not be a graduate of City College. In order to benefit the uninitiated, applicants are limited to those who have not had previous faculty experience at the post secondary level (with the exception of teaching assistants).

At this time there are many success stories that have resulted from the Faculty

Shared governance update

Committee on Information and Public Records

Editor's Note: On October 23, 2006 the Committee on Information and Public Records approved the September 25, 2006 minutes.

I. Orientation

There was an orientation about rules and responsibilities of the Committee on Information and Public Records (CIPR). In addition the following points were discussed:

Most CCSF operations do not fall under the Brown Act. For example, departmental meetings and staff meetings are not subject to the Brown Act.

Should the rule at college be that "The burden of prove should be on withholding, not on discloser." Additional discussion will follow.

Ron Lee, the general counsel of City College of San Francisco should be a resource to the Committee on Information and Public Records.

II. Upcoming Projects

The committee discussed the area under the purview of the CIPR, specifically, access and dissemination of information about various shared governance activities and decisions. The following new projects were decided on:

Revisit the Office of Shared Governance website after the major CCSF website overhaul will be finished.

Create an orientation for Shared Governance Committee Chairs.

Write an article in City Currents on the responsibilities of the Committee Chairs. Two FAQs will be developed for the next meeting, which eventually will be posted on the CCSF website.

An FAQ on how to access general CCSF information and records.

Another FAQ on Shared Governance.

Future Meetings

The meeting frequency was set to once a semester with additional meeting(s) as needed. The next meeting was set for Monday, January 29, 1 to 2 P.M. in E-200.

Election of Chair

Attila Gabor was elected as committee chair.

Grow Your Own

Mentor/Intern and the Grow Your Own program. City College now has a growing number of Faculty Mentor/Interns who have completed their internships and are teaching at City College, both full time and part time. In the Fall 2007 semester Mary Bravewoman, who interned under Cindy Moody in the Math Department, became our first Grow Your Own intern to be hired for a full time teaching position at City College.

A Dream Come True

We encourage more and more promising and interested students to take advantage of these programs. If you meet any potential City College teachers, or if you aspire to become a CCSF faculty member yourself, email Nance (gnance@ccsf.edu) to get more information about the Faculty Intern/Mentor Program or Grow Your Own program.

Orientation set for health care interpreters

Please let your students know that an introduction and orientation to the City College of San Francisco Health Care Interpreter Certificate Program will be held Tuesday, November 7, 6–9 P.M. at Saint Francis Memorial Hospital, 2nd floor, 900 Hyde Street, San Francisco.

The program is designed for fully bilingual, bicultural individuals who are interested in facilitating linguistic and cultural communication between patients and health care providers. The orientation will provide details on the training program's requirements, evaluate students' interest in the field of health care interpreting, and evaluate individual readiness to participate in the program.

A special invitation is extended to: Arabic/English, Mandarin/English, Russian/English, Spanish/English and Vietnamese/English speakers.

Prior registration is not necessary.

Program applications will be distributed at the end of the orientation only. Completed applications will be accepted between November 27 and December 12 only. For further details, please call (415) 452-5158.

Join the City College of San Francisco Friends of the Library

Dear Past, Present and Future Friends of the Library,

On behalf of the FOL Board of Directors, I would like to thank all of you who have loyally supported your CCSF libraries through the years. The library system is something we all have in common, and the diversity of people supporting the library is very encouraging. Many of you have already sent in checks this year! It is a delight to work with your support.

As an example of something we do when we can is to purchase deeply discounted books, last year we were able to purchase 26 titles for $230! You can find the entire list on our website at www.ccsf.edu/FOL, but here are some examples:

- Managing Cancer: the African American's guide to prevention, diagnosis, and treatment/ George Rawls, Frank P. Lloyd, Jr. and Herbert Stern.

- Encyclopedia of Archaeology: the great archaeologists/ edited by Tim Murray
- Madam Secretary/Madeline Albright with Bill Woodward
- Encyclopedia of Terrorism
- Louis Armstrong: the offstage story of Satchmo/Michael Cogswell
- Terror in the Name of God: why religious militants kill/ Jessica Stern
- The Cell Game: Sam Waksal's fast money and false promises—and the fate of Imclone's cancer drug/Alex Prud'homme
- Life on the Mississippi/ Mark Twain
- We Do: a celebration of gay and lesbian marriage/ foreword by Gavin Newsom; edited by Amy Rennert

In this era of limited public resources and smaller budgets for instructional materials and library activities, City College's library and resource centers need—count on—your support.

I hope that we can count on you to support the CCSF Libraries. If you haven't already contributed this academic year, please fill out the form on the reverse side and send it in with your contribution. Every dollar helps.

Sincerely,

Diana Markham

CCSF Physics Department

President of the Friends of the Library

We count on both new and returning members.

The budget is tight. Even though membership is only $10/year, the libraries gratefully accept larger contributions!

Donations help pay for many things including new books, materials, last minute increases in journal subscriptions, and library events. Visit our website at www.ccsf.edu/fol for the Friends of the Library bookstore hours, meeting times and other news.
