Abstract:
The Bay Area Advanced Transportation Technology Center (BAATTC) consists of four participating colleges including City College of San Francisco (administrative lead), Skyline College, College of Alameda, and Las Positas College. The Center builds and supports advanced transportation technology programs focused on alternative fuel vehicles, diesel emissions control, clean air technology, public education of alternative fuel technologies and the development of a broadly based Railroad Science Academy. Through funds from the State Chancellor’s Office, the Center develops and implements performance based training programs that support the workforce needs of advanced transportation technology.
