City College has lost $18 billion of its operating budget for 2009-2010. Similar cuts will be coming next year. Services, classes, salaries, and benefits have been cut, and faculty, staff, and students have all made sacrifices, but more needs to be done to offset the budget shortfall. City College still needs to trim costs.

To that end, Chancellor Griffin has launched (on Feb. 16) the CCSF COST-SAVINGS-IDEA CONTEST. Please help the college by sharing your best, most creative cost-saving ideas. Whoever comes up with the best cost-saving idea will win a prize.

Winners, winning ideas, and expected savings will be posted on the savings contest website and in City Currents (unless anonymity is requested). These postings will begin in March. Runners up will also receive prizes as long as supplies last.

The contest will run from Feb. 16 to May 27, the last day of finals. All CCSF-affiliated personnel or students are eligible to enter the contest, and cost-saving ideas are already being sent in to the contest. To find out how you can join the contest and find the rules and regulations, go to this link: http://www.ccsf.edu/Offices/SavingsContest/

See Agenda Page 6

Get a crash course in Budget and Finance and how the economic crisis and $20 million in budget cuts—and counting—at the state and local level have damaged our programs and services at CCSF and continue to threaten students’ futures. Bring your classes to the Diego Rivera Theatre on Wednesday, from 11 am to 2 pm for a jam-packed agenda of information presented by student leaders, the administration, faculty, classified staff, AFT2121, and SEIU1021. Here is everyone’s chance to be better informed as we enter into the March advocacy/protest whirlwind.

March 2 is the CCC Board of Governors and Chancellor’s Advocacy Day in Sacramento and a CCSF Advocacy Team representing students, faculty, staff, administration, and trustees will be traveling to the capitol to meet with state legislative and administration leadership.

March 4 is a statewide day of local rallies. In San Francisco, a Rally for California’s Future will be held at the Civic Center at 5 pm. CCSF will stand with other Bay Area colleges, United Educators of San Francisco and other K-12 constituencies, parents, and labor groups will protest budget cuts to send a strong message to San Francisco. For more information, send an email to ask-uesf@uesf.org.

March 22, the fourth March in March in Sacramento, will be the culminating goal, when educators and students from the around the state and CCSF will take their message “Enough is Enough” directly to the policy-makers in Sacramento. This event is of tremendous importance—as Chancellor Don Griffin says in the CCSF Budget Crisis video made by Broadcast Electronic Media Arts students, “This is a very important expression for students to make. There is a great tradition of protest in this country. They will be listened to if enough students come out and make a statement that education has the highest priority.”
Message from the President:

Join the Facilities Review Comm.

By Hal Huntsman
President, Academic Senate

With the Multi-Use Facility across Phelan Avenue coming online for Fall 2010, facilities and space are big issues on the minds of everyone around the college. When the college asked the public to support the plans for that building, we committed to new space for Health Education and Child Development in there.

We are also committed to a certain amount of classroom space. The remaining space is a relatively small portion of the total being built, but the college has the opportunity to allocate that space to best serve our students and community. Last year, the Senate advocated for an open and public process around allocation of the space in the Multi-use Building, as well as of the space vacated when programs move into the new building.

I’m pleased to say that this process has begun and that you have the opportunity to get involved. The discussions will begin in the Facilities Projects committee, a sub-committee of our Facilities Review committee. There is no limit to the number of faculty that can serve on the Facilities Projects, and, while membership is not required to attend meetings and speak out regarding the issues, becoming a member is a great way to get involved.

To become a member of the Facilities Projects (or any other) committee, please download the Faculty Request Form at Shared-Governance Complete the form and return it to Academic Senate, E202. I look forward to your participation and to learning how we can best serve our students through the effective use of space on campus. The process is starting soon, so get your applications in right away. If you have questions, please don’t hesitate to contact me.

View Furniture Samples Through Mar. 1

Please call Purchasing @ X2268, X2269 or X2413 to arrange a viewing at Gough Street of samples of classroom furniture for the new Joint Use and Chinatown projects. When you arrive, you’ll be given a ballot to indicate your preferences. Only those who will be occupying these new buildings will be able to vote. The furniture will be on display until March 1. At that time, the samples will be returned, according to Kathy Hennig, Head of Purchasing for the District.

Wednesday’s Town Hall Teach-In Agenda [see page 6 in this issue] is tightly scheduled, beginning with the Drum Club calling to attendees, followed by welcomes, videos, testimonies, and explanations about the budget mess from experts such as Dr. Timothy Killikelly, Political Science Professor, Peter Goldstein and John Bilmont of Finance and Administration, Marc Kitchel, Budget Analyst for AFT2121, Hal Huntsman, Academic Senate President, and Leslie Smith, Associate Vice Chancellor of Governmental Relations, and Pablo Rodriguez, Political Action Director for AFT2121, among others.

Along with the budget and finance information will be faculty and student-made videos and Tina Martin, Kathe Burick, and student song-and-dance participants in the Budget Song and Dance, a jazzy, slinky electric slide set to Tina’s new version of “Beat It,” one of the late Michael Jackson’s iconic hits.

Also on hand in the Frida Kahlo Garden and Arts Plaza will be the stunning Student Success Stories statues, Leslie Smith’s state-wide smash project, sign-up tables for seats on the many dozens of buses bound for Sacramento early March 22, voter registration information, and flyers, many flyers for the March 4 and March 22 rallies.

The Task Force organizing the Town Hall has been Smith, Ryan Vanderpol, President of Associated Students, Dave Whita-ker, Student Senator, and the General Assembly, a new student advocacy group, and members of the faculty and classified unions.

Come! Bring Your Students! 😊

“Dance for a Better Budget.
Dance for a Better Life.”

The Budget Song and Dance is Coming Our Way
And if we have our way, we’ll drum it as we sway.
Together we can, yes we can. And so let’s play
And beat it! Just beat it!

Students and faculty will have the chance to create energy and movement together during the Town Hall/Teach-In on Wednesday, February 24, when around 1:00, dance students and dance instructor Kathe Burick will lead a dance she describes as “A variation on the Electric Slide,” intended to get voices, feet, and energy marching down the street in Sacramento March 22 and at the Civic Center on March 4.

According to Tina Martin, the notable ESL song-writer and parodist, the college will be dancing to Michael Jackson’s tune “Beat It,” but this time the “beat it” will have the meaning of defeat it, as in defeating a bad budget. Marchers will hit a percussion instrument to rally-- in a heartbeat -- all those concerned with education.

Tina’s new words refer to the Vampire Slayers, who just might make an appearance in their new shiny capes:

Tell vampires slayers we are calling the roll.
We’ve got to put an end to our schools’ sad death toll.
A vampire is sucking the blood from our soul
So slay it! Education is life.
Relay it! Say it!
Education: Don’t betray it!

Student, Faculty Videos on Program

After Jorge Molina opens the Teach-In program, one of the first items on the agenda will be the CCSF Budget Video, produced with great professionalism by students in BCST 145, “Field Video Production,” under the watchful eye of Instructor Misha Antonich, Video Production and Editing Instructor in the Broadcast and Electronic Media Arts Department.

Through the magic of technology, you view the video can right now on YouTube by clicking on the link: Budget Cuts Video Package:
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9D-q8P-DxS0

The idea came from the students themselves and won the support of the class in a democratic vote based on perceived merit and presentation of the “pitch.” It is intended to raise awareness about educational funding and the fallout of budget cuts, in concert with current efforts AS student and staff on March 4th and March 22.

The video begins with Chancellor Griffin, who states, “This year we are losing a combined $20 million, $14 Million directly from the state . . .” and Zen Trenholm, Vice President of Finance for the Associated Students, who relays the students’
How Contest Works

Every two weeks, submitted ideas will be reviewed by the CCSF COST-$AVING$ CONTEST TASK FORCE, which is appointed by Chancellor Griffin and consists of representatives from the college’s classified, faculty, administration, and student populations.

A list of the best ideas will be forwarded to Peter Goldstein, Vice Chancellor of Finance and Administration, who will identify appropriate implementation areas for each idea and pass them along to the responsible individuals at City College.

Those tasked with implementing the ideas will report to the Task Force on the success of implementation, including real or expected financial savings.

At the end of Spring Semester, contest leaders will stop submissions, but will continue to track cost savings from already submitted ideas. At the beginning of Fall semester, the Task Force will review all the submitted ideas, the implementation, and cost savings and name the winners. There will be as many winners as there are prizes. Note: for duplicate ideas, the first submission will be identified as the winner.

Due to the budget shortfall in California, City College lost $18 million of its operating budget for the 2009-2010 school year. To balance this loss we sought additional funds and cut costs, including reductions in student services, classes, salaries, and benefits. More cuts will be coming in 2010-2011. (Learn more about the budget.)

The Portraits of Vincent Jackson

By Kate Connell, Curator

Rosenberg Library Exhibition

In keeping with this year’s theme for African American History Month: The History of Black Economic Empowerment, the Library has installed a 4th Floor display case with the work of artist Vincent Jackson. Jackson, a studio artist at Creativity Explored in San Francisco’s Mission District, regularly sells his abstract portraits through the Creativity Explored Gallery on Sixteenth Street. Recently, he was commissioned by Recchiuti Chocolate to design a special boxed set with his trademark combination of dark circular outlines filled with a range of colors on the surface of each chocolate.

For the last twenty-five years, Jackson has rendered his figurative work, mostly portraits in oil pastel, on large sheets of paper or smaller, shaped wood panels. His work can be seen online at http://www.creativityexplored.org/art/studio_artists/vincent_jackson/

Creativity Explored’s website describes the organization’s mission: “Creativity Explored is a nonprofit visual arts center where artists with developmental disabilities create, exhibit, and sell art.”

Creativity and City College are closely associated, with jointly sponsored classes offered through CCSF’s DSPS program, DSPS 4014: Arts and Crafts for the Disabled. This is the second library exhibition produced collaboratively with Creativity Explored. The first, “Words, Verses, and Garabatos,” runs through April 16, 2010 on the second floor of the Rosenberg Library.

ESL Faculty and KQED Present Going, Going, Green on Feb 27

Maxine Einhorn, Project Supervisor of the KQED Education Network, and Tina Martin, CCSF ESL instructor, will present “Going, Going, Green: A Student-Centered Eco-Literacy Curriculum” at the ESL Colloquium on Saturday, February 27. “Going, Going, Green” is the latest collaboration between the KQED Education Network and a group of CCSF instructors who have created ESL resources on media literacy, immigrant communities, voter literacy, and health literacy at http://www.kqed.org/esl.

Maxine Einhorn will showcase the web site www.kqed.org/eco-literacy which includes units by CCSF instructors Matt Holsten, Catherine Hartman, Ann Fontanella, and Kim Lee as well as by Jeannie Parent of Bakersfield College and Jeff McClelland of Oakland Adult School.

All lesson plans Curricula refer to KQED programming, which is all available online.

Tina Martin will demonstrate how she used the unit “How Green Is Your Campus” with an ESL Intermediate Listening and Speaking Class, who used the survey form for an in-class assignment. She will also share additional survey questions provided by Alisha Germaine of Green Corps, the CCSF campus student organization.

Tina Martin has attended several meetings of both the Sustainability Committee and the Green Corps and was happy to see a former ESL student at a February Green Corps meeting. KQED’s Einhorn said she was really impressed by the students’ campaign and offered them the opportunity of getting out the Green Corps message as a PSA, produced in digital story format.

KQED will have a table at CCSF’s Earth Day, April 22. See ESL Colloquium Flyer on page 10.

Census Opportunity For Your Students

The US Census is on campus through March 5, 2010, recruiting for various positions: census takers, crew leaders, crew leader assistants, recruiting assistants and census clerks. The starting salary is over $20 hourly and training will be provided. The recruiters will be located in the student cafeteria, in the west side area from 10:30 am to 1:30 pm. Please refer your students to this employment opportunity. For questions, feel free to contact the Career Development & Placement Center, Science Hall, Room 127, or call 239-3117.
The student chef is Peter Cham. Many of the dishes in the Noodle Bar are low-fat. Please feel free to stop by.

STUDENT-OPERATED NOODLE BAR IS NOW OPEN FOR LUNCH!

Located in the old “Taste Buds” location, the “No Name Noodle Bar” is a completely new concept: a Quick Service Asian-inspired noodle bar with dishes made fresh-to-order every day by students in the Culinary Arts program. The students prep, cook to order and serve everything you find here.

There are large soups (32oz!) and a variety of stir-fry dishes. On the lighter side there are small plates of Chicken Satay, Mushroom Fries with savory ponzu sauce, veggie spring rolls, and killer Asian style wings.

Culinary Arts Instructor Vince Paratore, who helped develop the concept with others on the faculty, says, “I want the students to learn the program with an edge and an enthusiasm so that when they go into the real competitive world of the restaurant business, they will able to compete in the highly-competitive San Francisco environment.”

Paratore, in his first semester at CCSF, comes from the private restaurant industry sector where he has 30 years experience. Among his positions was restaurant manager for the opening of the Beach Chalet restaurant on the Great Highway in San Francisco. He was also a general manager at Donatello’s and Star’s, both former up-scale San Francisco restaurants.
