Join us for a free film screening of the award-winning Agents of Change which documents student protests for relevant and meaningful education for racial/ethnic minorities in the 1960s at San Francisco State University and Cornell University. Such events sparked the creation of the first and only College of Ethnic Studies in the nation at San Francisco State. The lessons of both campus struggles remain relevant today.

A panel discussion featuring Filmmaker Abby Ginzberg and pioneering San Francisco State student leader and striker Juanita Tamayo Lott, will follow the film.
